

Estimated date of publication: 1 May 2018

The Story of White Hall Centre: Outdoor Education across the Decades

White Hall Centre for Open Country Pursuits, near Buxton in Derbyshire, was set up in 1950 by Jack Longland, Derbyshire's director of education. By 1970, Longland had observed 'an astonishing drift of the whole range of subjects which we call physical education towards outdoor pursuits, towards mountains and moors and rivers, lakes and the sea'. In successfully achieving Longland's local aims and in significantly influencing national developments, White Hall Centre helped to widen the meaning of education, and particularly of physical education. The Story of White Hall Centre describes White Hall's origins and its sixty-seven years in existence.

Written and published by Pete McDonald.
768 pages (156mm x 234mm).
285 photographs and drawings, 36 tables and diagrams.

ISBN		List price
9780473425272	Hardback	£45
Pending	E-book (EPUB)	£15
Pending	E-book (MOBI)	£15
Pending	PDF	£5

Order through your local bookshop or through an online bookseller. The PDF is available on Google Play.

About Print on Demand (POD)

The hardback book will be printed on demand (POD). The customer orders the book from a retailer. The retailer then orders a copy from the printer-distributor. Printing and delivery to a retailer within the UK typically takes ten business days.

I have set the list price of the printed book at the minimum compatible with the POD arrangements. This enables the printer-distributor to recoup the production costs. It also allows the retailer the standard trade mark-up. The royalty payable to me, the author-publisher, will be minimal. This will be donated to the Parkinsonism Society Otago Incorporated, as also will any royalty I receive from the sale of the electronic versions.

Pete McDonald
pete.mcdnz@outlook.com